Continuation of 11, does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicant argues that Ookawa does not teach or suggest roll printing. Applicant states that the specification specifies that roll printing in page 10 lines 1-21 comprises of a specifier process, however, no-where in the specification is roll printing with reasonable clarity, deliberateness and precision set out to be defined only as described in page 10 lines 1-21. Accordingly the claim term roll printing is being given its ordinary and customary meaning (that of printing using a roll). See In re Paulsen 30 F.3d 1475, 1480, 31 USPQ2d 1671, 1674 (Fed. Cir. 1994) and Phillips v. AVH Corp., 415 F.3d 1303, 75 USPQ2d 1321 (Fed. Cir. 2005). "Though understanding the claim language may be aided by explanations contained in the written description in the important not to import into a claim limitations that are not part of the claim. For example, a pricular embodiment appearing in the written description may not be read into a claim when the claim language is broader than the embodiment." Superguide Copy. v. Direct'V Enterprises, inc., 398 F.3d 870, 875, 68 USPQ2d 1865, 1868 (Fed. Cir. 2004). Accordingly while Ookawa tetaches a different method using rollers then that disclosed in page 10 lines 1-21 of applicant's specification, one of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that Cokawa still teaches the claimed method of manufacturing a Institudal reas substrate which among other things uses roll printing. Accordingly applicant's arguments are not persuasive and request for reconsideration does not place the application in condition for allowance.
